

WORLD BOOK ILLUSTRATIONS BY LEONARD E. HOEKHUIJ
A Corn Husking Party brightened settlement life at harvest time. The ears of corn were divided into equal piles. Neighbors formed teams that competed to see which could husk a pile first. A settler used a husking pin, left, to tear the husks from the corn.

